Re: Daniel Backman

Dear Mr. Lee:

You have asked me to review the medical care provided to Daniel Backman concerning his chronic pain. I have utilized the reasonable medical probability standard in rendering opinions expressed in this report.

For the evaluation of Mr. Backman's medical care, I have reviewed records from the Medical Examiner, Dr. Dennis B. Lind, Dr. Dean K. Otaka, Dr. Jon Graham, K-Mart Pharmacy and the depositions of Drs. Lind, Otaka and Graham.

It is my opinion that there is no absolute medical proof that any surgery would have improved the patient's overall medical condition, or would have resulted in a decrease of his pain medication usage. The basis of this opinion is that Mr. Backman suffered from a complex chronic pain syndrome that resulted from more than any simple anatomical derangement, that an independent medical examiner raised concerns about the relationship between where his pain was experienced and where he had anatomical pathology, that Mr. Backman had at least one prior overdose and yet was routinely provided with continuing controlled substances despite his inability to manage these medications, and that appropriate conservative measures were not fully explored.

It is my opinion that Mr. Backman overdosed himself with the medications he was prescribed. The basis of this opinion is that he had at least one prior documented overdose requiring medical attention and that he may have had other lesser events that were described as being overmedicated, taking too much medication, and being unable to participate in activities of daily living.

Please contact me if you have further questions.

Sincerely,

B. Eliot Cole, MD, MPA
